

New Perspectives on Language Competences: from Literacy to Multilingualism

Ana-Maria Stan - European Commission,
Directorate-General for Education,
Youth, Sport and Culture

What are we going to discuss?

1. Fundamental EU principles
2. Multilingual societies
3. Language learning and literacy
4. Two new Council Recommendations
5. How can the EU help?

Treaty of Maastricht 1992: European Union

EC Treaty

Article 149

To contribute to the development of quality education by encouraging cooperation between Member States and, if necessary, by supporting and supplementing their action.

Article 150

To implement a vocational training policy which supports and supplements the action of the Member States.

Article 151

To contribute to the flowering of the cultures of the Member States, while respecting their national and regional diversity and at the same time bringing their common cultural heritage to the fore.

EUROPEANS AND LANGUAGES

What young people say about languages:

I could not study in a foreign language

I would like to learn a new language

I already learned a foreign language but would like to improve it

EUROPEANS AND LANGUAGES

Statistics show that:

1ST FOREIGN LANGUAGE

is almost a basic skill

97% of pupils learn

2ND FOREIGN LANGUAGE is not compulsory everywhere or can be dropped after 3-4 years

9%

of all 15-year olds in the EU speak a different language at home than at school

Our goal:

At the end of upper secondary school young people should be able to:

- 1) Fully use the language of schooling
- 2) Fully use another European language
- 3) Confidently use a third language

NEW PROGRAMME (2021-2027) – Successor of Erasmus+

"I am very proud that this Commission has proposed to double the budget for Erasmus – this is by far the biggest increase for any programme in the EU budget we have tabled. We need to be bold.

This programme will support the big ambitions we have for empowering young people, building a European Education Area and strengthening our European identity.

I call on Member States and the European Parliament to support us and make sure we can build the best future for our citizens."

(Tibor Navracsics, European Commissioner for education, culture, youth and sport)
